Every business office has an atmosphere peculiarly its own.

Modern enterprise, push and energy, seem strangely out of place in a counting room where the farmiture is as old as the methods of business. To keep abreast of the times you need comfortable office farmiture of modern style, just as the manufacturer needs the latest tools, the scientist the latest books and the physician the latest remedies.

The appearance of your office is an index to your commercial prosperity. Straws show which way the wind blows. Don't lag behind in the matter of office farmishing. It is but the spinding of a few dollars and your office will present a very different appearance.
